

Less-known places to study on the A&M campus

- In the classroom (as long as there's no class going on or it's not in use, it really is one of the best places to study!)
  - Check with the departmental staff assistant to see when classrooms might be available. S/he can be a real ally!
- 2nd floor of Rudder on one of the benches
- Sign up for a private cubicle at the library.
- The west wing of the MSC on the 2nd floor has some quiet lounge space.
- There are usually students studying at tables/couches around the POD room in Cain Hall, and it's always quiet there.
- Cushing Library reading room; always quiet, few others there
- Upstairs in the MSC
- Multicultural Services study area
- Medical school library on west campus
- Peer Academic Services lobby (2nd floor YMCA)
- The Life Sciences building across from the YMCA.
- The Vet School on west campus
- Harrington Tower lobby and ground floor
- Students in the FOCUS program can use 400 Hotard between 8-5 on weekdays.

No matter where you choose to study, make sure you are safe both while you're studying and while you're traveling to and from those locations, especially at night! Upon request, the Corps of Cadets Guard Room will dispatch cadets to escort students to and from the library, parking areas, residence halls, and other campus buildings. That phone number is 979-845-6789.
